Going from general worker to manager intern has been challenging and rewarding at the same time. I have learned a lot and understand better the importance of good communication, resolving employee conflicts, and the importance of good customer service. This training has been a powerful learning experience and has helped me immensely in my professional life.

As a general worker, I knew the basics of working in a school cafeteria. Now, I feel more prepared to LEAD a cafeteria where I have a group of employees each with an assigned task. In other words I have gained the knowledge to run the cafeteria operations, place orders, take inventories and the importance of following the procedures established in the Procedure Manual.

During my transition from general worker to manager intern, I've grown by learning to lead, be organized, and manage the daily kitchen operations. I've gained skills in time management, teamwork, and communication. I now understand the importance of supporting the team and maintaining food safety.
